This set of Asterix playing cards had travelled the world with my then boyfriend, now husband and I, and have given many hours of cardplaying enjoyment. These cards, I felt, must have absorbed some of our very essence. I then asked my victim husband who I shall from now on refer to as Andy, for that is his name to select which King he thought should represent him, as advised by the Grand Orient himself These are the cards and their meanings We have quite a few social engagements coming up so I will be on my guard for any unfounded jealousy or imprudence. This is what we found. Also a dark man's thoughts. If attended by clubs, feasting and merrymaking. I really hope this doesn't come true but I shall be vigilant and report back if our next party goes horribly awry. After this faintly depressing reading for Andy I was hoping for some wonderful cards full of good fortune, success and great wealth. How wrong could I be Because Andy had chosen the King of Clubs to represent himself, I followed Grand Orient's advice and made myself the Queen of Clubs, who is described thus

Not helped by the fact that Andy guffawed loudly when this, the most grim of all cards, came up for my future. Whatever way you look at these cards they are not giving me a message of joy. If so please leave a comment. When the selected cards are laid out on the table, I will view the images in light of what's been happening in my life. The subconscious takes over, and points things out I might otherwise have missed. This has been a very useful process over the years, but is essentially just another way of focusing on issues. I can see how cards could be a useful tool for self-analysis. Thanks for your comment.
